MERĪ KĪRĪHĪMETE!

CHRISTCHURCH CITY LIBRARIES' HOLIDAY HOURS

Happy holidays from all of us at Christchurch City Libraries!

Please take note of our opening hours across the festive season.

Kia Ora

There have been lots of exciting happenings during the three months since our last edition of uncover-huraina.

One of the most significant is the approval of the name Tūranga for the new central library in the Square, gifted by Te Ngāi Tūāhuriri Rūnanga and reflecting the relationship with Whitireia, the traditional name for Cathedral Square.

Tūranga is still set to open mid-2018 and as the building rises it's obvious just what an integral place it will occupy at the heart of our city. If you are in town, take the time to check on progress.

During the busy year, reading, trying out new things and visiting new places can drop to the bottom of the to-do list. Christchurch City Libraries can help over the summer. We can suggest some good reads in digital and paper form, we'll be offering programmes and events for children and adults and we have two beautiful new purpose built facilities at Ōrauwahata: Bishopdale Library and Community Centre and Matuku Takotako: Sumner Centre for you to visit.

Whether you choose to use the huge range of resources and services provided by Christchurch City Libraries by distance or by coming in to one of our libraries, there's something for everyone.

Summer Dreams of Sand, Sea and Donkeys

Going to the beach in summer was as popular an activity over 100 years ago as it is today.

Families that were very wealthy rented summer houses in Sumner, with father staying in Christchurch to work during the week and coming out for weekends with the family. More accessible to everyone was going to the beach for the day. Day trippers from Christchurch would cram themselves onto the Tram in Cathedral Square. They would eventually arrive at the last stop at Sumner which delivered them to the beach.

Adults promenaded along the Sumner pier or climbed up Cave Rock. They were constrained by strict Victorian society so their summer day beach activities were in full Victorian costume. Children had more freedom to enjoy the sand, sea and other activities offered at the beach. Still heavily dressed compared with today's beachwear, they at least could take off their shoes and socks which allowed them to paddle and feel the sand between their toes.

One of the most popular activities for the children was to have a ride on the donkeys along the beach. The donkeys were docile and gentle enough to allow very young children to ride them. Even if you couldn't afford a ride, you may have been able to pat one if you waited patiently by one of the donkey pens.

The first donkeys had been imported from Australia. Donkey rides became so popular at Sumner, that the demand supported two businesses supplying them. One was operated by Mr Spiers, the other by Mr Felgate and both operated from donkey pens around Cave Rock. Other activities available nearby were the swings, merry-go-round and bathing machines which ensured the separation and privacy of bathing for men and women.

Let's go to the Movies

Which was better – the book or the movie?

A question you may be asking yourself once you have got through some of our favourite books to film coming to our shelves this summer!

Wonder by R.J. Palacio is the funny, sweet and incredibly moving story of Auggie Pullman who was born with a terrible facial abnormality. This film version of the book is out on 30th November and stars Jacob Tremblay, Julia Roberts and Owen Wilson.

The Secret Scripture by Sebastian Barry is the story of Roseanne McNulty as she nears her 100th birthday in the Roscommon Regional Mental hospital where she's spent the best part of her adult life. This film version is out on 7th December and stars Vanessa Redgrave and Rooney Mara.

Call Me By Your Name by André Aciman is the story of a sudden and powerful romance that blossoms between an adolescent boy and a summer guest at his parents' cliffside mansion on the Italian Riviera. Featured in the New Zealand International Film Festival in 2017 and starring Armie Hammer and Timothée Chalamet, this film version of the book is due for release on 28th December.

The Wife by Meg Wolitzer. Joe and Joan Castleman are en route to Helsinki. Joe is thinking about the prestigious literary prize he will receive there, while Joan is plotting how to leave him. The film version of the book stars Glenn Close and Jonathan Pryce and is due for release on 1 February 2018.

The Death Cure by James Dashner. Thomas and the remaining Gladers square off against the WCKD organisation for the last time in the third and final instalment of the Maze Runner series. This film version of the book stars Dylan O'Brien, Kaya Scodelario and Thomas Brodie-Sangster and is coming to cinemas on 25th January 2018.

Robyn Chandler
Manager of Literacy Christchurch

Interview by Jan Orme, Senior Library Assistant, Outreach and Learning Team

Professionally, what does the library mean to you?

So many things – university, education, nurturing, empowerment, research, choice, access to knowledge – the library is a place of instruction and delight, and such a key feature of a free society. It's a world of information and cultural richness rather than a set of walls. Libraries have provided both education and entertainment for me.

And personally – what's your favourite part of the library?

Do I have to pick only one? I love the displays of artwork and artefacts, the children's section and its sense of potential. I tend to focus on one area of a collection for a while – mountaineering, gardening, local history, music, art... recently the graphic novel collection (loved Northern Lights). But if I had to focus on just the one area because I had a time limit it would be the new books – there's always something to find.

Would you please share some highlights of your own literacy journey?

I remember sitting outside the University library on a bleak winter's day reading the 19th century Wuthering Heights, the words collapsing the distances of history, space, and culture. I was there, on that "bleak hill-top," lost in the "atmospheric tumult."

On a professional level, it would have to be becoming a volunteer literacy tutor and having the privilege of meeting people from all walks of life and sharing their literacy journey for a time.

What would you say to your learners who are new to using the library?

I would want them to know that they are in charge of their library experience and that there are people available to support them with their library choices and needs. I would advise them to not be intimidated and to be aware of the resources available to them and that library staff are more than happy to help. The library is there for everybody; the library belongs to us all.

We'd love to see more of your learners in our libraries, what would be your best advice to help us achieve that?

The most important thing new library users need to see is a friendly face and to feel welcomed, to see proof that the library is there for them and their community. Some of our learners have English as an additional language and it would be nice to see more welcome signs in other languages. I'm really pleased to see that families are going to be able to take part in the Summer Reading challenges this year, this kind of activity encourages novice library users to participate in what's going on in the library. Doing things with whānau can feel more natural than doing things alone.

What would be the one book you would take to a desert island?

I'm going to cheat – my desert island will have WiFi and I will be accessing the library's great and growing collection of e-Resources. Me, my device, and more media than I'll ever be able to get through...a whole world at my fingertips.

Digital Summer Reading

“Holiday reads” makes you instantly think of relaxing in the sun with a good book. There is so much more to holiday reading than a book, especially if you are travelling somewhere and you are short on space, you can download eBooks, eMagazines, eAudiobooks to a single device and have a whole holiday of reading in one place.

eAudiobooks available on Borrowbox and OverDrive

Travelling somewhere on holiday, the car packed to bursting, stuck in the car for hours on end with cries “Are we there yet?” and “How much longer?” coming from the backseat, how about an eAudiobook? There are heaps of titles to try that will be suitable for a long journey such as David Walliams’ brilliant books like Gangsta Granny and Mr Stink, sure to keep the family entertained for a few hours.

2017 Man Booker prize winner Lincoln in the Bardo eAudiobook is read by a cast of 166 award-winning actors and musicians.

eBooks from OverDrive, Wheelers and Askews

Wheelers have some great summer reads especially if you like non-fiction. Following on from the successful YouTube series, Jordan Watson has How to DAD and How to DAD Volume 2. If you are anything like me I find the secret cults fascinating and love reading about Gloriavale and the big blue dresses. Daughter of Gloriavale: My life in a religious cult by Lilia Tarawa tells the world what life is really like in this secluded community.

OverDrive has some great summer fiction reads – check out these great titles.

Eleanor Oliphant is completely fine by Gail Honeyman is the story of Eleanor, a loner with a carefully timetabled life avoiding social interactions with weekends of frozen pizza and vodka.

Rich People Problems by Kevin Kwan is the third book in his series Crazy Rich Asians, where the entire family rushes to the deathbed of the family matriarch to stake a claim on the massive family fortune.

eMagazines from RBdigital and PressReader

If you are going on holiday but the thought of not reading the newspaper is too much to bear then download the PressReader app and you can download the latest newspaper or magazine. PressReader has over 6000 newspapers and magazines from around the world.

Flicking through a magazine is something I always love when relaxing on holiday until I realise I have already read the three that are on holiday with me. RBdigital eMagazines has a huge collection of eMagazines from Woman’s Day and Vogue, to The Listener and Wilderness. Using the RBdigital app you can download issues to read when you are offline.

INTRODUCING TŪRANGA!

Christchurch's new central library has its official name — Tūranga.

The $92 million public library, which is currently being built on the corner of Cathedral Square and Gloucester Street, will be the largest in the South Island and a third larger than the city's former earthquake-damaged central library.

The name Tūranga was gifted by Te Ngāi Tūāhuriri Rūnanga and reflects the relationship with Whitireia, the traditional name for Cathedral Square.

"In oral tradition Whitireia was the name of the house of Paikea, the ancestor who travelled here on the back of a whale," says Carolyn Robertson, Head of Libraries and Information.

"We're not just rebuilding, we're completely reinventing (the library) in the process."

"Tūranga was where his house was located, so the name honours the Māori tradition while reflecting the library's new location in the heart of the city."

Ms Robertson says Tūranga, which is on schedule to open mid-next year, will significantly change how people think about the library and interact with its services.

"Many people might assume we're simply rebuilding the old central library, albeit a bit bigger and a bit further down the road. The reality is, however, we're not just rebuilding, we're completely reinventing it in the process."

"Highly flexibly spaces and new technology will be central to the way Tūranga operates. The entire library will become a digital hub supported by a variety of high-tech features and new experiences. Think virtual reality, gaming consoles, laser cutters, digital walls, 3D printers and you're starting to get the idea."

"It really is going to be something incredibly special for the city, and a real focal point for domestic and international visitors," adds Ms Robertson.

Treasure in the Libraries

Did you know that there is treasure in our libraries? It's hidden all over the place, all you've got to do is just look for it!

Are you up for the challenge?

Come along to one of our taonga (treasure) themed school holiday sessions at a library near you and help us to discover what cool things are hidden there.

Enjoy storytelling, go on a scavenger hunt in the library to discover treasures and then get crafty with us by making your own little treasure box to take home with you.

FREE, Bookings essential, please phone 941 7923. Recommended for ages 5–12 years.
