the first line of
entrenchments the Turks jumping out
and running up the hill calling all
allah! allah! allah!
the Bolonials following into and through the next line of trenches
and on into a third line. they here fell
into trouble from Turkish machine
guns and had to retire. The Turkish
snipers as the charge
approached would fall down and
pretend to be dead
and when it had passed would sit
up and shoot off
the officers. a big

Turks and throwing
them over his shoulder
the shearing of wheat
made it his business
to attend to these and
went round and
caught and a Turk
had found alive.

The artillery got their guns ashore and
"man-handled" them
up to a bit of a
rise from which they made good
practice.

We are just steam
ing out of Mudros bound in for some direct for the Dardanelles it is blowing fairly hard
and it will be a very bad landing in the sea.
