I regularly tell people that Tūranga will be at the forefront of information technology. From Bookbots to virtual reality to a public media suite, we'll be offering unprecedented opportunities for our communities. On the flip side, you may wonder what this means for the rest of our libraries; where do we sit in this age where anyone with an internet connection can access and curate knowledge?

Firstly, I'm reminded of the adage that while a search engine can deliver millions of results, only a librarian can lead you to the right one! Secondly, our libraries are still an integral space for communities to gather, connect, learn and celebrate. On a given day, you'll find groups hosting anything from faith services to weddings, job search seminars to settlement workshops for new citizens. Why not drop into a library this month and see what's new?

On a personal note, I've recently finished reading Five Rivers Met on a Wooded Plain, by young British playwright and novelist Barney Norris. I enjoyed the interweaving of the five characters' stories with the rivers in the title acting as metaphor for the way the characters' experiences touch on and intersect with each other. The setting is Salisbury, England, where town and countryside are beautifully evoked, including the cathedral, Old Sarum and nearby Stonehenge. We hold copies of this title in our libraries plus Norris's latest novel Turning for Home.

MUSICAL ARCHITECTURE OF BAND ROTUNDAS

Brass bands developed as a popular form of musical entertainment in the late 19th century. By the early 20th century, many businesses and suburbs had their own bands, which would play for the public at weekends and during celebrations, as well as compete in competitions.

Band rotundas were built in many public spaces across the city to create permanent outdoor locations for the bands to play in and to help to project their music into the surrounding area. The rotundas also provided a space for public speeches and commemorations.

The oldest band rotunda in Christchurch was built in Latimer Square. This was relocated to Victoria Square in 1894, and later moved to Waltham Park after the Edmonds Band Rotunda was opened on the Avon in 1929. The Edmonds Band Rotunda, built in the High Renaissance style, was gifted to the city by Thomas Edmonds as part of a River Bank Improvement Scheme.

Another band rotunda built in the 1920s was the Bandsmen Memorial Rotunda in the Botanic Gardens, but this was built for very different reasons. This was the first memorial in New Zealand to be erected to the memory of bandsmen who died in the First World War. This rotunda was designed in the Classical style and was completed in 1926.

TE IWA O MATARIKI

Toitū Ngā Mahinga Kai o Matariki – Tupu-ā-nuku, Tupu-ā-rangi, Ururangi

CELEBRATING THE WIND AND NATURAL RESOURCES OF MATARIKI

1–30 JUNE 2018

MATARIKI 2018

A fresh look through old eyes at Māori oral traditions, practices and customs associated with the Māori New Year. This year we will be exploring Toitū Ngā Mahinga Kai o Matariki – Sustainable natural resources of Matariki: Tupu-ā-nuku, Tupu-ā-rangi, Ururangi.

Nine or seven? That's the question!

The star cluster of Matariki (Pleiades) has long been aligned to the Greek classic of the seven daughters of Pleione and Atlas, who, upon being harassed, turned into doves and flew into the heavens. With the adaptation of this classic, two stars were not included in any traditions or commemorations; rather the mythical seven were embraced.

However, history records that Māori were aware of the presence of more than seven visible stars within the cluster, as noted by early historians Elsdon Best and William Colenso.

Associate Professor, Dr Rangi Matamua, Te Whare Wānanga o Waikato, is a leading Māori astronomer. He has spent over 20 years researching indigenous astronomy. Awarded the 2014 Fulbright Scholarship – Ngā Pae o te Māramatanga (NPM), Rangi used the grant to study how astronomy is embedded into the cultural practices of indigenous people. That same year he was successful in leading a group of Māori astronomers in securing funding from the Royal Society of Astronomy (the Marsden Fund) to continue this study. It is through his NPM research and the work of the Marsden Fund project Te Mauria Whiritoi that Rangi has re-confirmed that there are nine stars that constitute the star cluster of Pleiades or Matariki, rather than just the well-known seven stars of Matariki.

For this reason Rangi and Te Reo Māori Language expert Paraone Gloyne produced an article in the May 2016 Mana Magazine reclaiming the two missing stars and providing an insight into Te Iwa o Matariki.

Contrary to popular belief, there are nine stars in the constellation of Matariki, rather than seven. They all hold dominion over particular areas of our environment as seen from a Māori world view. They are; Matariki, Pōhutukawa, Waitī, Waitā, Waipuna-ā-rangi, Tupuānuku, Tupuā-rangi, Ururangi, and Hiwa-i-te-rangi. Traditionally, our ancestors did not just look at the constellation as a whole, but rather viewed each star individually, gaining an insight into the year ahead.

— Gloyne & Matamua, 2016

Puanga or not to Puanga?

For some iwi Puanga, not Matariki, marks the start of the New Year as it rises just before Matariki. For others Puanga is seen as the precursor to the rise of Matariki. It is Puanga that foretells the fortunes of the coming of the New Year by his appearance and placement when he first rises after the first new moon. It is Matariki who confirms it through her placement and appearance when she appears three days later.

According to some oral traditions, Puanga is the older brother, Takurua is the middle brother and Matariki is their pretty younger sister. Jealous of the attention Matariki gets, “the task of Puanga is to strive ahead of Matariki that he may again take possession of the year for himself.” (Rerekura, 2014) It is for this reason he appears prior to Matariki in the hope that he may be heralded as the bringer of the New Year, only to be overlooked with the appearance of Matariki.

Does Matariki always rise in June?

No, the last quarter of the moon cycle known as the Tangaroa nights of the moon is when Matariki rises. This can vary from year to year but is always in the cold months from May to July. This year the rise of Matariki is from 6-9 July.

WHAT, WHEN and WHERE?

Hauhake tū, ka tō Matariki

The harvest ends
when Matariki sets

Matariki is a time of giving thanks for what we have, remembering those who have passed away, making wishes for the year ahead and celebrating whānau and friends. The rise of Matariki signals the end of the harvesting of mahinga kai, natural resources. It was then time for the Whare Wānaka – the houses of learning, to open. Here in Te Waipounamu the hauhake Titi – the mutton bird harvest is the last mahinga kai harvest of the Māori Year before Matariki rises.

Christchurch City Libraries are proud to present a fresh look through old eyes at Māori oral traditions, practices and customs associated with the Māori New Year. We invite you and your family to join us over June as we re-introduce 'Te Iwa o Matariki – the Nine Stars of Matariki.' This year we will be exploring Toitū Ngā Mahinga Kai o Matariki – Sustainable natural resources of Matariki: Tupu-ā-nuku, Tupu-ā-rangi, Ururangi.

If you're looking for large print books then try these titles.

From a seed of historical truth, George Saunders spins an unforgettable story of familial love and loss that breaks free of realism, entering a thrilling, supernatural domain both hilarious and terrifying.

Five Minutes of Amazing is both the story of Chris' epic journey and of his fight against Dementia, increasingly being recognised as the defining disease of our generation. Inspiring and heart-rending in equal measure, it's as important as it is moving, and it will touch everyone who reads it.

Manon Bradshaw is back. As dusk falls, a young man staggers through a park, far from home, bleeding from a stab wound. He dies where he falls; cradled by a stranger, a woman's name on his lips in his last seconds of life. And as the Cambridgeshire police force closes ranks against her, she is forced to contemplate the unthinkable. How well does she know her loved ones, and are they capable of murder?

Music trails through the libraries

Following the success of 2017, the Christchurch Symphony Orchestra, in partnership with Christchurch City Libraries, is delighted to bring back CSO Presents: Music Trails through the Library. Over the course of the year from March to October, various CSO ensembles will visit libraries across Christchurch to bring live music to young children and their caregivers. These free 45-minute performances provide a fun and interactive way of introducing young people to live music.

With elements of dance, song and stories, Music Trails through the Library are a gorgeous opportunity for your wee one to see the instruments up close and join in with the musical fun.

Free, caregiver required. All sessions run from 10.30am–11.15am.

READING TO DOGS

Have you booked in for Reading to Dogs yet?

This 'paw-some' collaboration between our Libraries and the Council's Animal Management team is designed to provide a relaxed and non-judgmental atmosphere to encourage children to practice reading – at their pace. Our 'fur-tastic' programme is currently running during term time at:

Shirley Library

Tuesdays 3.30pm–4.30pm

New Brighton Library

Wednesdays 3.30pm–4.30pm

Papanui Library

Thursday 3.30pm–4.30pm

Bookings for these 15-minute sessions are essential... and get snapped up quickly! Please call 03 941 7923 or visit christchurchcitylibraries.com

Reading to Dogs is one of the many programmes that Christchurch dog registration fees fund. On that note, 2018 dog registration fees are now due! If you have Responsible Dog Owner status, your discounted fees are due by 30 June. General dog registration fees are due by 31 July.

Tell me a bit about yourself.

I am of Cook Island, Czech Republic and Irish descent. I am Wellington born and bred, but have always, and will always, support the Crusaders. Haha! I moved to Christchurch from Australia, fell in love with the city, met my husband and we now have a beautiful 7 year old daughter. I have citizenship in three different countries, NZ, Australia and the Cook Islands and have recently joined the libraries after working for NZ Police for 12.5 years.

What's your earliest library memory?

It would have been when I first started school, going to the school library once a week. I was amazed at all the books the library had, that I could pick any book I wanted and it would be mine for a week.

What does the library mean to you and your whānau?

I think libraries are really important. I loved going to the library with my Mum and Auntie when I was younger; it instilled a love of books, discovery and learning from a young age for me. It is something that I do with my daughter and she loves it as much as I did. Although the libraries are so much more fun and exciting these days!

What is your all-time favourite read?

Charlotte's Web is the first one that comes to mind! I think this was one of the first books that I was absolutely engrossed in from beginning to end – loved it.

I have recently enjoyed reading a book my Dad recommended to me, Legacy by James Kerr. It's a book about leadership and is based on the All Blacks ethos.

As we lead in to celebrating Cook Island Week in our Christchurch City Libraries – how do you and your family celebrate during this time and do you have any words of wisdom to leave us with?

Festive seasons with my anau (family in Cook Island) are all about being together. Surrounded by love, laughter, good vibes and of course great food. It's not a kuki get together if there isn't a Brother Love song or two playing in the background as well.

Cook Islands Language Week – Te 'Epetoma o Te Reo Kūki 'Āirani celebrates the languages spoken by the people of the Cook Islands; Cook Islands Māori, the Western Polynesian language Pukapuka, and the distinctive mixture of Cook Islands Māori and English spoken by the people of Palmerston Island.

Sunday 29 July to Saturday 4 August 2018

ALL THIS TECHNOLOGY UNDER ONE ROOF

Christchurch's new central library, Tūranga, will be jam-packed with smart technology and a raft of new services.

Think virtual reality, robotics, smartphone apps, laser cutters, 3D printers, digital touch-walls, and you're starting to get the idea. These photos offer a glimpse into some of the amazing possibilities when curiosity, technology and creativity collide!

- 1/ Liz, an arts teacher from Hillmorton High School, creates virtual graffiti art using an app called Kingspray, which simulates spray-painting (it even "drips" if you press down the virtual nozzle for too long!).
- 2/ Te Whānau Tahi student Harmony holds a 3D-printed keyring complete with secret compartment.
- 3/ A tapa-inspired design cut out of card using a vinyl cutter (great for producing stencils!).
- 4/ Antonio displays a 3D-printed Pikachu Pokémon prize.
- 5/ A student using computer code to programme a Lego Mindstorm robot.
- 6/ Van Asch Deaf Education Centre student Jonathon poses with his very own 3D design, which he made using a 3D printer during a school course.
- 7/ A robot from the University of Canterbury's HIT Lab NZ holds library visitors entranced during a "Fun Palaces" event.
- 8/ After-school student Toi gets creative with a 3D pen to bring a 2D drawing into the third dimension. The 3D pen works in a similar way to a 3D printer but allows for free-hand designing.
- 9/ Christchurch tertiary design student Joanne made 3D-printed items and vinyl-cut T-shirt graphics for her final design portfolio.
- 10/ A laser-cut bamboo bookmark produced for Tūranga.
