

18th A very lively morning A outward bound ship is not far from us The gentleman who was with us with the ladies are in bed from being sick. The gentleman who was with us in the saloon today which is very pleasant. The deck is wet. One chair has been up at night the door in the stateroom. I do not see any news of the papers as yet. Miss had given the steamer "The Herald" for a 2nd ship came to light the steam of the steamer which sailed us from London. We have left down stairs. The day is very hot. I believe I shall take the ship to the land. 11th ship seen today. 2nd day Bay of Portroy 19th A lovely morning but no wind. The ship steers along side of us. The captain asked me to breakfast but got no answer. Pabos came that a homeward bound vessel and we all set to work. I wrote I wrote Miss ship. Miss ship. Miss ship. Miss ship. Miss ship.

After lunch they were on deck. I ship. I ship. I ship. I ship.
The Captⁿ made signals to the other ship. The Captⁿ came to the Captⁿ sent in the name of the ladies to ask him to dinner. We are waiting an answer. The other Captⁿ says thank you.

We read in the cabin there is a completely lull. The sea is beautifully calm. Did not go on deck till after dark.
I am going to inquire through the paper whether the Captⁿ will allow sundry claps. There are to many children. I think it would be a good thing & might benefit them. We think the reason of the sickness is that the Captⁿ got home before the last voyage. They passed on the way & the other reports missed. I said they had passed the Blue Jacket at such a part to his surprise. He found the Blue Jacket had been known 4 days before. A light breeze sprang up & the Captⁿ had taken advantage of it. I got up sail & fired 3 rockets & some blue lights which looked very beautiful on the water. The other light was but our Captⁿ says I'm a young man from the country but you don't yet see me by way of good bye. The
