

Keep us all cheerful after putting her children to bed they got the 2 fainted her husband Georg Hippy's ship was all the time about to get on her to the sea with a length of 1000 she was laid in bed but did not get up next day for nothing she had been so severely going about to get access of comfort for that when the excitement was over it all upon herself I did try to remember her who had the wings I saw in his hand & earnestly prayed to be made a missionary but it was a great trial

Sunday 26th We had service on deck at 11 AM. Mr. Brown read not finished when the rain came on Mr. Webb brought the subject with the little boy dressed up in a sailor's complete I think suit was so proud of himself he was only 4 I think he went on with his little hands pockets full of gingerbread so happy I had such a bad headache I laid down I read some of Mr. Winchell's like dinner time I then hurried to my chamber for the twilight falls so fast that it becomes too dark to read After the had some pretty hymns played by the team The children on deck sung their little hymns by themselves very nicely indeed The ship still sails much Monday 27th On the Philippine mission on such occasions a good deal of talking very little singing as usual on board ship Mr. Webb I put me behind a door to read the gentleman with whom I have the Philippine sea mission which he did almost unthinkingly I pronounced out upon him in his retirement he was completely caught A Capt. Johnson was taken to the Capt. caught one quite it to Hippy I then went to the ways for the hat The cold is so thick we got out some water for the at least some strong per sented but one brand did not appear to be we must wait although we are quite well off I killed all day & only read on deck for a little but soon came down as one of the floor but was walking on one side with a girl of whom I do not approve I do not wish to annoy any one of the keep in their places We had dinner in the evening for all the players
