

for a day. Mr & Mrs P. well, & the place looks splendid, a splendid show for fruit, & the garden since I came the paddocks, show that the season suit them, by the abundance of grass growing in them.

We all went to Ceb. a.m. The Bishop came over & preached to a full ch for the Mass. I saw many old familiar faces since grown so that I hardly knew them I suppose that, time I age is telling on them.

The ch. is going falling into decay already the ~~walls~~ <sup>walls</sup> ~~are~~ <sup>are</sup> rising way, on each side, shored up by strong props of wood.

Mr. Tyer came over P.m. I to tea, we spent most of the afternoon singing, etc. I a walk round the garden just before tea Spent a pleasant evening, sitting (the three of us after Lord left) round a small table in front of the window looking out onto the harbour, talking over old scenes, times gone by, & old friends far away. how quick time passes, as on the wings of the wind, when pleasantly employed.

Nov 14 Monday. fine, R. C. up by four & after taking a slight repast, started for Ceb. ch., arrived at Tyer's pass at five, & as I walked <sup>down</sup> the winding road; Ceb. ch. gradually came in view, sleeping calmly in the twilight of early morn, enclos'd in soft repose, God's greatest creatures, will save the birds, betokened, that the day had commenced A glorious light, as the sun gradually rose above the eastern horizon, as she threw her horizontal rays along the ground, throwing a lucid glare on all creation; whilst admiring this scene, smoke is gradually to be seen arising out of first one chimney then another, till it increase I the City became enveloped in a cloud of smoke, almost shrouding it from view, then might be heard the voice of man & the barking of dogs driving home the midday pine, the business of the day commenced, another toilsome week, — weighed anchor, I may be a week, that will be remembered by many.

I reached Ceb. ch. 7 a.m., and was at my post at the usual hour; Trade fair, to the mechanics in the evening, to bed early.

Nov 15. Tuesday, showery, S.W, rather a dreary look out for many, who have far to bring their things to the show, that is to be held tomorrow Trade dull, up town P.m; for a walk round town in the evening.
