

especially at the time, when the supposed enemy were routed, & the foot formed into companies opened out, to let the Cavalry charge through;

The Cup was won by No. 1 company 2nd. — coming in second, the winner was chaired & carried into the encampment amidst the hearty cheer of his comrades.

Home about 4 p.m. Stayed at Dr Brown's to tea & accompanied them to the Concert at the Town Hall in the evening. Mr Whittle's solo - in Italian, Dr Woods' solo - on the flute, & Dr Bunting's duet on the violin, were loudly encored, even so much, that we were not satisfied, & would have a repetition, I spent three pleasant hours back to Dr Brown's where we sat chatting over the events of the day, till nigh unto the small hours

Apl 18. Tuesday, fine, h. c. cool nights, Trade fair. To Miss Camerons in the evening; where I received a hearty reception, two other ladies & a gentleman, the hours past pleasantly, chatting away on different subjects, telling anecdotes, after supper, the Miss Camerons, sang a pretty song together, the eldest sang seconds, the other visitors left in eleven, but I stopped on till nigh twelve, altogether, (it is a long since I have enjoyed myself so much.

Apl 19. Wednesday. fine, h. c. & to after 4 p.m. so again & I'm threatening, up to Mr Taylors before breakfast, Trade Fair.

F. D. I myself went to the Mechanics, in the evening to hear Mr Doyne lecture, on that most interesting subject, (to all who reside or take any interest in the province of Lancaster) on ~~Bridging~~ Bridging the Rakia, showing the great superiority of an iron over a wooden bridge & the utter <sup>importunity</sup> of building a wooden bridge over the Rakia, & showing plans of his intended bridge & told us the manner, in which the cast iron cylinders are <sup>shoved</sup>, & also a new invention of his, for the purpose of preventing, the reverberation of a loaded bridge injuring the cylinders, a very interesting lecture, much useful knowledge disclosed, & well delivered.
Mr Doyne received a vote of thanks from all present at the conclusion, where most of those present availed themselves, <sup>of the opportunity</sup> of looking over Mr D's elaborate plans of the bridge.
