

July 24. Monday, fine, threatening, Ig. S. E. trade fair. Drove to Packard's in the evening, to sympathise with him, on the loss of his best earthly friend "his Mother." The loss seemed too great for <sup>him</sup> to realize.
Yes it is hard to realize, & we seem to be in a dream, awaiting the time of awaking, to see if it really is so or not. <sup>when his trials come to an end</sup> He has received several — sympathising letters, which seem to soften grief.
She seems to have died happy, & therefore — why sorrow where there's hope, she is removed from further trials by her Heavenly Father, & now she is reaping her reward, she seemed pleased to find a heart to sorrow with him; Yea! it does lighten grief, when a busy heart, burthened its troubles to another, & two sorrow together. "Weep with those that weep!"

July 25. Tuesday, stony roads I. w. trade dull in consequence, making paper bags & tickets, to the — Mechanics in the evening.

July 26. Wednesday, showery, I. w. trade dull, I think was taken very bad last night, & continued in bed all day, cold in his stomach, which caused him a great deal of pain & made him reach & vomit excessively. within reading in the evening.

July 27. Thursday, squalls of hail, rain & snow Sav. cleared towards evening & commenced freezing trade very dull, to an Inquest at the Hospital <sup>held</sup> A. M., on the body of "Joseph Deanne". He died from the effects of a gun-shot wound in his right thigh A mate of his was in act of shooting some duck flying over head, when in shooting, he caught his foot in the rope of the tent, which brought him to the ground, in falling, he upset Deanne, the gun immediately went off & entered the poor fellow's thigh, the muzzle being so near, as to burn his breeches, the entered just above his knee on the outside & came out just below the groin. He was quite sensible & not a murmur escaped his lips. The accident happened on Sunday the 15th instant, ten miles this side of Brownsburg pass, in the gorge of Martin, & it was near a week before he reached the Hospital. which he entered on Saturday last, on Sunday Dr. Orrin & Steatum, saw that the chance of saving his life was by amputating his leg at the hip joint. which operation was successfully performed, & he was progressing favorably till
