

all over the Baildon
moors and you can get a lovely view
of the surrounding country from there.
Then I went out to Masham and stop
there two days and
had a good weather.
Fanny Buckton came to see me while I was there. I went back to Bradford for two days and stop
at Mrs. Lund again
and then I went back to London till
I had to come back to France. I went to different places of admiration nearly every night and I

saw one or two
very good plays.
The food is a very serious question
over there at present
but they are doing
allright at Bradford.
Fresh meat is about
the hardest thing to get and sugar tea
butter are also very scarce and in London it is a shame to see
the people line up
in rows waiting
