about 1500 have
hardly any officers
and in consequence are a nuisance when it comes to issuing rations. but they seem all right as a whole. their equipment is very complete in fact
I don't think that any army could be much more completely equipped than the Australians. There is another transport with us with Australians
only aboard it is the
"Osmanieh" our own
being the Saturnia.
We passed a warship
this morning and
now there are several ships, apparently transports to be seen
going to Limnos now.

We are at Mudros
now in the island of Limnos. We arrived here yesterday afternoon passing on our way in a couple of French torpedo boats and a dummy Dreadnought, a merchant ship rigged up with canvas to represent a Dreadnought and so
deceive submarines.

Mudros, which it appears the British have bought since the beginning of the war
is a fine bay with room for a hundred ships. There are eleven transports lying close
