

cool, the windows that look on to this aspect clear glass, but on the other side of the house they look out to the bleating desert and here are coloured. There are two "Sisters" here and several hospital orderlies under three doctors.

Maj. MacLean who operated on me in Helioptolis was in yesterday and was showing me a piece of a man's skull about the diameter of a shilling. The man suffered of continual headaches and so he was operated on and this piece removed when it was found that although there was no sign on the outside the inside lining of the bone was eroded.
"He is preserving it" as a surgical curiosity.

He apparently does not like the look of my jaw.

Wed 31/6/15.

Went for a motor ride on Monday evening down to the Nile in one of the ambulance motors but it is a fine drive through Helouan and then through the cultivated flats to the edge of the river, which we struck at the Cafe Restaurant Dan Girvanai we then went along the edge of the river in an avenue of big rubber trees and finally turned in at the Daltaba Mother's Palace, which is at present a hospital. It is not an extraordinary fine place, it has some nice grounds but gives the impression
