for the rest of the way, the well had been dug out of the rock. There was water at the bottom of this well, & it was possibly hundreds of years old. We also located the ruins of a courtward station on the sea-coast. It was in a delightful spot, sheltered from the wind & the water was so clear & calm. It would have made an ideal picnic spot.

Yesterday afternoon Ralph & I went for a swim in the cove we found the week before. We splashed about & washed the sand off.

We have had windy weather this past week, & on Friday night we had a real sand storm. We had to go up & cover the ventilators with sack-
-ing & then put the lids on as the sand was coming in. Next morning
