

Latin means "Behold the man." It was at this spot that Pilate uttered those words when Christ was delivered to the people. Along the way of the Cross are the various stages of Christ's journey to Calvary & these are marked by a simple inscription in the stone walls of buildings along the route. There is the place where they stumbled & fell, the place where his mother saw him pass by, & so on.

We finally came to the end of the journey, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, very old & built over the site where Christ was crucified & buried. You could see the original rock which has been built into & around the stone walls of the Church, so as to protect it. It was so cool & quiet in there & one felt very humble.

Well, this brought our sight-seeing in Jerusalem to an end. I could have spent a week
